Trustees to consider iron filtration system

NEW LENOX — Plans and specifications for iron removal filters for the New Lenox water system, are slated to be ready for consideration by village officials at their board meeting June 7.

John Djerf, of Robert E. Hamilton Associates, Joliet, engineers for the village, said they felt certain the plans would be ready on the date given above and that the board could then authorize advertisements for bids.

If the board can award a contract at its June 21 meeting, Djerf said, the filters should be in operation by the end of summer, possibly before.

The elevated water storage tank has been painted inside and out and some of the lines flushed and tested.

The iron content of the water, however, is above acceptable standards, it was pointed out, and because of that the village trustees decided to install the filters. This, of course, will be an additional cost for the projects.

Presence of iron in water that comes from wells is not uncommon, according to those familiar with water systems. Sometimes rust accumulates in the mains, especially if there are dead-ends which prevent free circulation.

It will be sometime, probably after mid-summer, before householders will be able to have the hook-ups made with the mains. The contractor for the job, Blaine Saxton, of Mokena, is now starting to run service lines to the property lines and since there are about 500 of these it will take some time before they are all in, it was explained.

Three-quarter inch copper pipe is required by the village water ordinance for the connection between the house and the property line. This connection, of course, will be at the expense of the property owner.

Village lists streets ripe for repairs

MOKENA — A resolution to use motor fuel tax money in the amount of $21,000 for improvement of Mokena streets, including the sum of $3,000 for street lighting, has been adopted by the village board at the suggestion of George Barber, village engineer.

Barber suggested that village crews be employed to do the major patching of the streets and be reimbursed from motor fuel tax money rather than contracting to have the work done.

To be included in this program are Mokena Street from the Rock Island tracks south to LaPorte Road; Hiawatha Boulevard; Center Street north of Hiawatha; the west end of Denny Street; all of McGovney Street.

Also Mokena Street from Front to Second Street; Division Street from First to Third Street; Cross Street;

Third Street from Schoolhouse Road to Midland Avenue; Third Street at the intersection with Wolf Road; Parker Street from Wolf Road to the alley; a block of Midland Avenue between Parker and Bryant, and Boyer Court.

Rental for equipment also could be paid out of MFT funds, it was said.

Representatives from Brightwood inquired as to the progress on the water and sewer installation for that subdivision. Village Attorney George E. Sangmeister reported that he has obtained the names and addresses of each homeowner in Brightwood from the title company and a public hearing will be held later. The improvement is to be financed through special assessment. It was reported that contracts probably would be let by fall and the work completed in two or three months.

The village engineer reported he has contacted Hillcrest Builders and asked the firm to provide sufficient size pipe to handle the Brightwood sewage. He suggested that the Brightwood main be connected to the Hazel Crest line rather than going to Wolf Road. Barber will have detailed estimates for the Brightwood sewer at the second board meeting in June.

As to the drainage problem on 195th Street, Trustee Kenneth Warring said nothing will be done until the village engineer completes a plan to remedy the situation.

There has been a discussion about cutting a swale between the property of Al Feeley and Mrs. Mary Halfacre. Feeley said that Jack Armin had given him a figure of $1 a foot for the 475 foot cut. Village Attorney Sangmeister advised the village should get the job done; pay for it and collect — suing if necessary — from the two property owners.

Bike law becomes effective this week

FRANKFORT — Beginning June 1 Frankfort police will begin enforcing the ordinance pertaining to bicycle riders. Points or demerit marks will be given for violations. Ten such points, according to Police Chief T.A. Massey will result in loss of riding privileges for two weeks. If 20 such points accrue within a year it will mean loss of license.

All bicycles operated in the village are required to have a license. Such a license costs 50 cents and may be obtained at the village hall. License numbers will be useful for identification of bikes that may be lost or stolen, it was pointed out.

Citizens organize against PUD

NEW LENOX — A new organization being formed at New Lenox — Concerned Village Citizens — turned out about 50 strong at the recessed meeting of the village board in further protest against the proposed planned unit development by Levitt and Sons.

Not all of the village board members were present but there were enough for a quorum and they spent most of the evening in listening to urgings that utmost care be used in considering the Levitt request.

The project is also known as the Arlington Grove Subdivision and the Greenbriar Subdivision and sometimes simply as "that" planned unit development.

At the village board session the previous week one of the trustees asked Joe Davies, 320 Haven Ave., who was addressing the council, who or what he represented. At last week's session Davies informed the board that residents of New Lenox are in the process of forming the Concerned Village Citizens and that the organization would undoubtedly have spokesmen to express its views.

At the past several meetings of the Planning Commission and the village board Davies and Robert Haney have been the principal spokesmen for the citizens who are disturbed by the proposed planned unit development — PUD as it is generally referred to, officially and unofficially.

At last Wednesday's meeting Davies introduced Lee Rosenquist, an assistant superintendent at Lincoln-Way High School; Mike Higgins, of the Rainbow Valley Homeowners Association, an organization which has been finding specifications are not always followed by builders; and Charles T. McKaid of William Lawrence and Associates, Chicago, planners, a firm hired by the Concerned Village Citizens to go over the planned unit development ordinance and give an opinion on its merits.

Davies pointed out that this is a $20-million project that will bring approximately 3,600 more people into New Lenox.

"We have learned," Davies told the board, "that one cannot rely on the image of a national developer to protect the public's interest, nor can one rely on the National Building Code even when complied with to mean construction will be proper. Likewise, FHA has a deaf ear after the developer has the money.

"To the best of our knowledge the construction and design of these living units has not been investigated by competent authority. In addition we are not aware of any provision to provide constant inspection, which will certainly be necessary on a project of this magnitude.

"Either the village building commissioner, who is a graduate architect, should be asked to review these plans and recommend what changes, if any, should be made to meet standard construction practices in this neighborhood or an outside architect should be employed for this purpose and to have an inspector on the project at all times, the minute construction starts," Davies said.

Davies pointed out that traffic control would be a problem. He suggested that the Planning Commission employ a competent traffic engineer to design the entrances and exits leading in and out of the development, and the layout of the streets.

"Although there is a provision in the PUD for a homeowners association," Davies said, "to operate and maintain recreational facilities greenery and open space, we can prove there is no provision for private ownership and maintenance of streets. Yet, this is proposed for Greenbriar.

"Although we have no objection to this type of operation with certain built-in safeguards," Davies went on, "we believe it requires an amendment to the zoning code, so that all developers enjoy equal opportunity.

"We suggest that after proper public hearings are held to amend the code but that if the facilities are not maintained, taxes and insurance are not paid, the village can step in and demand compliance with the agreements covering these items.

"Further, since the village attorney has ruled there is some question whether village traffic ordinances would be enforceable on private streets without a covenant from the developer or homeowners association permitting the same, that such a document should be on hand before any portion of the PUD is approved."

Mike Higgins, who lives in the Kaufman and Broad section of Arbury Hills known as Rainbow Valley advised, "Get everything down in black and white in dealing with developers."

That is what the Concerned Village Citizens want done in the case of the Levitt and Sons development.

School asks Levitt for donation (again)

NEW LENOX — Contrary to a statement attributed to Kenneth Campbell of the Arlington Grove Subdivision, the planned unit development at New Lenox fathered by Levitt and Sons — that Lincoln-Way High School had stated in writing it was not interested in any voluntary cash contributions by the developer, Supt. Joe Kruzich addressed a letter to Mayor Joseph Hartung repeating a denial made at a previous board meeting.

At the village board session last Wednesday night Lee Rosenquist, an assistant superintendent at Lincoln-Way, read a copy of the letter to the trustees. The letter follows:

"I want to inform you that as of this date (May 24) Mr. Kenneth Campbell of the Arlington Grove Subdivision has not produced the letter that he claimed was written by an administrator or the Board of Education of Lincoln-Way Community High School. Mr. Campbell has stated in the presence of the Planning Commission of New Lenox, that he would be in conference with me prior to the final approval of the Arlington Grove Subdivision — this he has not done.

For your information, the cost per unit of this subdivision would be approximately $40 — a very small amount when you consider the services this subdivision will demand from this high school.

"The Lincoln-Way High School Board of Education and the administration are very grateful to Mr. John Francis and the New Lenox Fire Department for their demands that the Arlington Grove Subdivision conform to the regulations regarding the width of the streets. The high school also will use these streets for our 66 passenger buses.

"The citizens living in this subdivision will demand transportation and we will have to provide it. We will have to add one or two buses for that subdivision at an initial cost of approximately $12,000 per bus for body and chassis, insurance, operational cost and driver for the first year and then a continued cost of operation, maintenance, insurance and driver.

"The Planning Commission and village board both agreed on the need for an ordinance to cover new building requests in the village of New Lenox — for this we are grateful. We ask that you strongly request the Arlington Grove Subdivision representatives to make a voluntary cash contribution to the high school in the above stated amounts to offset the initial services this subdivision will demand.

Due to the support of our taxpayers, Lincoln-Way High School has not had to issue tax anticipation warrants for the operation of the school since 1964. In other words, we have been able to balance our books each year. The local newspapers are reporting that many Will County schools have usurped their 1972 tax monies and are now budgeting so they can anticipate on their 1973 tax monies.

"If subdivisions such as Arlington Grove are allowed to come into the Lincoln-Way High School District — and I speak of its 90 square miles — this school district, eventually will have to follow the trend of other Will County school districts in regard to deficit spending.

"I am sure you can see the urgency of our request that the Arlington Grove Subdivision representatives make a cash contribution to Lincoln-Way Community High School before the final approval of this subdivision is voted on."

The letter carries the signature of Joe Kruzich as superintendent of Lincoln-Way.

It was received and placed on file.

Accident takes life of highway worker

JOLIET — Robert Swansbro, 47, Joliet, a foreman for the Will County Department, was killed Tuesday forenoon when a road grader backed over him when at work at a parking lot under construction on the former Woodruff Hotel site.

Driver of the grader, Fred Gast of Green Garden Township, went into shock after the accident. He was taken to Silver Cross Hospital and later released.

According to report given to Coroner Willard Blood, Swansbro was behind the grader with his back to the machine.

Alarm misfires

FRANKFORT — A malfunction in the fire alarm system at the Lexington Retirement Home caused evacuation of approximately 100 residents at 3:15 Tuesday afternoon.

Firemen and police responded to the alarm and a search of the building failed to discover any evidence of fire.

It was determined that there was apparently something wrong with the alarm system.

Seniors hunt for home

MOKENA — Mrs. William Plecki, head of the Mokena Senior Citizens Club, and Mrs. Lillian Boleman, a member appeared at a recent meeting of the Mokena Village Board to ask aid in locating a meeting place for the organization.

The club is presently using the Cow Palace at St. Mary for its meetings but this is available only at night. The Senior like some tables and chairs and a 75-cup can use during the day. They also would like some tables and chairs and a 75-cup coffee pot. They want to become self-supporting.

Each member pays $2 a year and the Mokena club has become affiliated with the Senior Citizens Council at Joliet from which it receives information and help on projects. The Mokena club has about 50 members.

Property rezoned

MOKENA — An ordinance was adopted at the last meeting of the Mokena village board that reverts three areas of property from R-5 (multiple housing) back to R-1 (single family). The property was turned back to its original zoning because too much time had elapsed without any action under the new classification.

Affected by the change are the south half of the lots facing First Street between Division and Wolf Road, with the exception of those properties where multiple housing units have been built; the lots on McGovney Street between Hacker and Mokena streets, and the extension of McGovney east of Mokena Street.

Also adopted by the board was an ordinance providing for dedication of school sites or payment of fees in lieu of school sites by land developers, builders or subdividers.

Scenic river loss deplorable

There are two problems in the killing of the Illinois Scenic Rivers Bill.

One is the outrage of the killing itself, an act perpetrated by the Senate Agriculture and Conservation Committee in an 8-3 vote to keep the bill from the Senate floor.

The other is the existence, and the potential impact, of the committee itself.

The killing of the bill was a miserable act by the committee, and we worry of this kind of perversion of the legislative process whereby a measure of enormous interest and considerable controversy isn't even allowed to see the light of day in full General Assembly action.

Committee members play God in areas like these, the small handful of them deciding the fate of a proposed law, never allowing the full body to be on public record.

In the myriad of small matters that come before committees, and which are not worth time on the full floor, there is justification. But not in a case like that of the Scenic Rivers bill, a measure of such paramount importance that it is immoral to shortstop legislative consideration of it.

The Agriculture and Conservation Committee treated the Scenic Rivers Bill cruelly, bottling it up since its overwhelming passage by the House last spring, and then finally killing it.

It was yet another perpetuation of the tragic tradition in Illinois that in matters of the environment versus private interest, it is private interest that comes first. The Scenic Rivers bill was heavily lobbied against by industries, particularly those that extract sand and gravel from riverbeds; by lumbermen, who relish the timber along the banks of many rivers and streams; and farmers—who fretted the bill would open their lands to recreation and prevent them from cultivating their fields, though it intended neither.

Those forces won out, and the last forum where the citizens could be heard—in action on the Senate floor—was denied.

Illinois is the loser again, as the bill—really quite modest in its proposals—would have protected small stretches of ten rivers and three creeks from any further encroachment by commercial interests, and from any dredging or damming, and would instead have preserved them for their scenic, historic and recreational value.

It was wrong that the committee took its action, and perhaps even more wrong is the nature of the committee itself. Once two separate committees, the agriculture and conservation interests were joined in this General Assembly session as one committee, under Sen. John Knuppel, D-Petersburg, as chairman.

The linking is absurd. The interests are contradictory, more so today than ever before when the demands for environmental protections have reached urgent proportions.

And, judging by the results with the Scenic Rivers bill, the agriculture interests have the upper hand. We shudder at the implication of that in the committee's current consideration of another critical environmental bill—the so-called Lake Michigan Bill of Rights.

Sen. John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge, the Senate sponsor of the bill, has a suggestion that we heartily endorse: splitting up the Agriculture and Conservation Committee into its former separate parts.

That ought to be done as quickly as possible in the next session of the General Assembly. Then, a bill such as the Scenic Rivers proposal can get consideration where it should: in a conservation committee, and not one already stacked with conflicting interests.

That should be a high priority in 1973. And so should be the reintroducing of the Scenic Rivers Bill, its only hope now of ever achieving passage.

The lack of respect and consideration people show for their neighbors is appalling to me. Last fall at some expense and considerable labor, I planted spring bulbs, jonquils, tulips and hyacinths in front of my house hoping to enjoy their beauty this spring.

They began to bloom, but beginning last Saturday, everyday I come home more blooms have been picked until there aren't many left.

I assume this is done by children in the neighborhood. It would seem to me any parent with any moral character or principle would not only reprimand his child for such behavior but would also see that the flowers are returned to their rightful owner and an apology be made.

I would assume even people from the heart of a city would know these flowers don't grow wild on the streets of Mokena.

I am writing to you about a pleasant experience I had in your town on the evening of May 12th and I do hope you print it in your newspaper because I feel it merits reading by your ever so many readers.

Longfellow said, "Music is the universal language of mankind." How true! Last night, May 12th, I had the pleasure and privilege of attending the annual Spring Festival of Music at the Central Junior High School in Tinley Park. My spirits were lifted and I felt as though I was once again in a wonderful world, away from doubts and fears as to where our youth are going.

These young musicians, some beginners, played light and classical selections from some of our most prominent composers. They were attentive to their director Arthur H. Beckman, and they behaved and played like pros.

Much work had gone into preparing for this concert by students and director and of course, with great support of the parents and interested and concerned people. The girls chorus under the direction of Karen Lancaster, rendered selections that are dear to all of us, their last number being, "God Bless America."

This closing number made ones heart swell with pride and gave one the feeling that we need not fear about the future of our country. These young people are off to a good start! May they have much support from the adults to show they care.

I came away knowing Averbach was right when he said, "Music washes away from the soul, the dust of everyday life."

There is much talk today about a growing problem in the United States—The Population Explosion. One factor all too often overlooked in relation to the population problem is the net in migration of aliens from foreign countries. The Rockefeller Commission Report on Population and The American Future states it this way.

Immigrants are now entering the United States at a rate of almost 400,000 per year.

If net immigration were to remain at about 400,000 per year and all families were to have an average of two children, then immigrants arriving between 1970 and the year 2000, plus their descendants born here, would number 15 million at the end of the century. This would account for almost a quarter of the total population increase during that period.

Not only do we have a severe enough problem with an antiquated nineteenth century immigration policy and a growth ethic we have inherited from an age of a nearly empty continent, we have an additional problem with illegal aliens. The report goes on to say.

A major and growing problem associated with immigration is that of illegal immigrants. It is impossible to estimate precisely how many escape detection; but, during 1971, over 420,000 deportable aliens were located. This figure is larger than the number of immigrants who entered legally during the same period. Estimates place the number of illegal aliens currently in the United States between one and two million.

Most are men seeking employment. Because the number of illegal aliens apprehended has risen dramatically (from less than 71,000 in 1960 to over 400,000 in 1971), the number of aliens in illegal status has probably been increasing significantly. Also, the problem has been spreading from the southwest, along the Mexican border, to all the major metropolitan areas across the country.

In addition to the adverse economic pressures caused by illegal aliens, it is possible that legal immigration could have a negative impact if not regulated carefully. Since immigrants often have relatively high education and skills, there is an economic incentive for employers and institutions to favor them. This can work to the disadvantage of the native-born, particularly members of minority groups and women, who have traditionally been discriminated against and denied opportunities to upgrade their skills.

A flow of highly trained immigrants can mask the need for developing and promoting domestic talents.

The commission recommends that Congress immediately consider the serious situation of illegal immigration and pass legislation which will impose civil and criminal sanctions on employers of illegal bordercrossers or aliens in an immigration status in which employment is not authorized.

I feel the commission's recommendations do not go far enough. Since the only official identity an employer is legally required to obtain from any person seeking a job is a Social Security number, and since all one needs to do to obtain a Social Security card is to apply for one giving any name, without proof of identity or national origin, I suggest that the Congress make it mandatory for everyone native born or alien to first show proof of citizenship by means of a birth certificate before a Social Security card can be obtained.

It would follow then that if a person cannot obtain a Social Security card he then could not obtain a job and if an alien cannot work they then will not have any incentive to enter our already underemployed and overpopulated country.

Senate sinks shoreline bill in committee

By Bob Lahey

Little hope is seen for passage of legislation to protect some 335 miles of river shoreline in Illinois before a new legislature is elected and returns to Springfield next January.

A Senate committee last week dammed the Scenic Rivers Bill, which would have established restrictions on land use of certain unspoiled river banks on 10 major waterways in Illinois.

Sen. John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge, Senate sponsor of the bill, told the Herald he saw little hope for resurrecting the bill this session of the Legislature. The committee vote against it means the bill is dead unless the whole Senate should vote to discharge the committee and bring the bill to the floor. "I just don't see the votes to accomplish that," said Carroll.

The bill was killed by an 8-3 vote in the Agriculture and Conservation Committee. Carroll pointed out that the nature of that committee probably was partly responsible for the death of the Scenic Rivers Bill.

"Interests of agriculture and conservation are often at opposites," he declared. "They simply are not compatible in the same committee."

Carroll pointed out that the Senate formerly had separate committees on agriculture and on conservation. The two were combined for the first time in the current legislative session. Carroll said he hoped to see them separated again in the next session.

The Scenic Rivers Bill was passed in the House last summer with relatively little difficulty after a series of amendments were accepted by its sponsors to make it more palatable to private interests.

It sat in the Agriculture and Conservation Committee from June 14, 1971, until its demise Tuesday, May 9.

It encountered opposition that ranged from industries which extract sand and gravel from riverbeds to landowners such as Rep. Lester Cunningham, R-Belvidere, who stoutly defended his right to construct fences across the Kishwaukee River, where he owns dairyland on both sides of the river.

Areas that would have been protected by the bill included some on the Fox and Des Plaines Rivers, and a two-mile stretch of the Mississippi River, which environmentalists say is the nesting ground of one-quarter of the world's remaining bald eagle population.

On second thought

Garlic, it turns mosquitoes off

By Glenn Logan

Jefferson P. Throtlebottom, exponent of the one-day work week and a freeloader of renown and great resource, occupied his favorite chair in the office, scanning news releases and sniffing critically of a pipe tobacco mixture in a humidur.

"I wish you would use less of this dark Virginia," he said. "It doesn't do much for it. Personally, I prefer a pinch or so of perique and some latakia and . . ."

"My wife doesn't care for the odor given off from latakia," I interrupted. "says it smells like someone burning a creosoted post."

"Well," said Jefferson P., helping himself liberally to the tobacco he had been criticizing, "everybody has his likes and dislikes. I notice here in some filler material from the Industrial News Review which quotes the National Wildlife Federation Conversation News to the effect that mosquitoes can't abide garlic."

"Mosquitoes don't like garlic?" I repeated. "How do they know?"

"I don't know that," Jeff said. "I suppose we will just have to accept that on faith, or the 'they' school. All it says here that two biology professors from Bombay are responsible for the statement. Since their school apparently is located in Bombay I assume that these two professors are Indians."

"These two researchers, it says here, have reported that garlic may prove to be a deadly diet for mosquitoes, houseflies and certain major insect pests, while posing none of the ill effects of DDT.

"From what I read," Jeff went on, "it is the oil of garlic that is used and that must be very potent stuff indeed." "I am ready to admit that," Jeff said, "because I worked once in a place where one of the women brought his lunch every day. The lunch reeked of garlic and he reeked of garlic and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon the whole room smelled of garlic."

"This fellow claimed that he ate the stuff to keep his blood pressure down. I have heard since that garlic has no effect on blood pressure but am not so sure. Whether it took this fellow's blood pressure down or not I don't know but the smell of that garlic day after day caused the blood pressures of the rest of us to rise I'm sure," Jeff shuddered.

"Just imagine how strong an odor there would be if one extracted the oil of garlic," he went on. "Just rubbing a cut clove around the inside of a bowl will flavor a salad. Just think what a few smears of that oil would do."

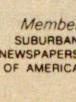

"I notice," Jeff continued, "that this wildlife publication doesn't say anything about using garlic oil as a mosquito repellent in town. As a matter of fact it says if one is going to the woods, — and I suppose it would be alright to use it on a fishing trip — it is suggested that one rub himself with this garlic oil and he will be insect free."

"That is all very well, but what if a man wants to go hunting or fishing but likes company? If he goes smearing himself with oil of garlic it won't be long before he will be alone. I think he would be safe, even in grizzly country, unless, of course, he met up with an ill-tempered bear with a bad case of sinus trouble," I said.

"If this stuff fended off chiggers, ticks and no-seems it might be worth it to try it," Jeff went on, "and there is this much to say in its favor — no one would ever get lost. Searching parties would have no difficulty in finding him. Just follow their noses."

"Well," Jeff said after a long pause, "what I would like to know is what a person who rubs himself with garlic oil is going to do after he returns from the wilderness. These Bombay chaps apparently have just done a half-way job. This news squib doesn't say if they are still working on it or have turned the job over to a couple of other guys, probably chemists, to figure out what to do to rid one of the odor. One can't go around forever smelling like a Poor-Boy Sandwich or a chunk of hot garlic bread."

"Well, so-long," and Jeff got up and started for the door, "I think I'll experiment with a little oil of bourbon. It may not keep the mosquitoes away but it should keep them in a happy frame of mind so they won't bite."

Dieters dread: cake capers, best bakers

ORLAND PARK — Four Sandburg students were declared first place winners in the first "Creative Cakery" contest held May 15 by the Sandburg home economics department under the direction of Mrs. Florence Butler, with student coordinators Patti Marshall and Nancy Kubis.

The four first place winners were Nancy Hillman, Steve Cross, Sandie Nagel, and Kathy Zurik. Second place winners were Jean Hokanson, Cathy Panozzo, and Donna Finck.

Others who received certificates of recognition were: Patty Shook, Nancy Kubis, Lisa Seng Sue Merey, Sue Pokras, Pat Holland, Lynn King, Pam Rafacz, Pat Hammer, Allen Willis, George Connelly, Diane Petr, Jan Bailey, James Conry, Kathy Gray, Dwain Capodice, and Helen Brown.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Sandy Walker, a representative from Northern Illinois Gas Company, who acted as consultant to the home economics department and the student coordinators, Mrs. Ochoa, a columnist for a local newspaper, and Michael Coglianesse, assistant principal at Sandburg.

The student coordinators were gratified by all the students who entered the contest with cakes that had to be baked at home. They agreed that the contest was well worth the two or three months of planning that they had invested in the scheduling. "It was fantastic," agreed both Patti and Nancy.

Senior citizens to get tax break

COOK COUNTY — Cook County Assessor P.J. Cullerton said last week he wholeheartedly welcomed the opinion of the Illinois State Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the Homestead Exemption to give senior citizens tax relief for 1972 taxes payable next year.

At the same time Cullerton announced he was mailing 100,000 applications for the Homestead Exemption to taxpayers who have applied in the past as well as to those who have contacted his office in the last few months.

"At long last the courts have seen fit to allow the Assessor to grant this much-needed tax relief to the senior citizens in our county," Cullerton said.

"Of all groups of property owners, certainly senior citizens who have supported the community through many years of previous taxes paid deserve this much needed relief," Cullerton added.

Cullerton explained that the applications for the Homestead Exemption, which should reduce property taxes on a home by about $115 next year, will arrive by mail in the next few days.

There are only three requirements needed to qualify for this tax relief: the taxpayer must have been 65 years old as of Jan. 1, 1972, own his home, and reside in his home as of Jan. 1.

Proof of these three requirements may be supplied by providing the Assessor with proof of age, ownership and residence when applying for the Homestead Exemption.

Cullerton estimated the loss in revenue to schools and local government to be in excess of $11.5 million dollars. This loss will be absorbed by all other property owners if the state legislature does not reimburse schools and local governments.

"Property taxes are already too high," Cullerton said. "I have urged the legislature in the past and I reiterate stand that the state must make up for this and other lost revenue from special exemptions so that the taxes of other citizens will not be raised again."

Cullerton said he has established a Homestead Exemption Department in the Assessor's Office.

Any taxpayer wishing further information may contact that department at 118 N. Clark Street or may call the department at 321-6151.

'Helicon' proves a big hit

ORLAND PARK — As a result of the huge popularity and quick sell-out of "Helicon", a booklet of creative writing by the students at Carl Sandburg High School last year, this year's edition has been increased, advises Miss Marion Lynch, faculty sponsor.

She urges members of the community to acquire a copy of the booklet to see what the students are doing in original photography and art work, along with poetry, verse, and other creative writing forms.

In the foreword of last year's "Helicon", it is explained that the name of the booklet was adopted because according to ancient Greek legend, the nine muses, patron goddesses of the arts, dwelled on a mount named Helicon. They were the source of all artistic inspiration.

For further information, and to receive a copy of the "Helicon" which sells for $1 each, call Miss Marion Lynch at Carl Sandburg High School 361-4600.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER BY JIM HIRSCH

Summer time is vacation time for many people. It will soon be here. Every year you hear, "Never again" — when vacationers return from bumper-to-bumper clogged highways and from plane travelers who spend more time in getting to and from airports than they do in the air. People forget past irritations and are ready and anxious to do it again. Some travelers enjoy the crowds of picture taking tourists in cosmopolitan areas. Others bypass beaten paths and trek to remote, untouched spots for inspiration in isolation. They prefer to see only their own foot prints in the sand.

For whatever intentions you have for travel or vacation this year, may we make some suggestions? Be sure to take a peek into the human hearts you meet along the way . . . Be sure to let others know where you are . . . Be sure you can be reached if need be . . . In fact, you can feel free to use our office for a contact or communication point if you want to . . . Good luck . . . Enjoy yourself . . .

I like, You like, We like

By Jean Wille

TINLEY PARK — "Come in, Mrs. Wille, but, please excuse the messy room — we were so busy today."

This was my first introduction to Mrs. Patricia Maloney, kindergarten teacher at the Bert Fulton School, District 146.

Mrs. Maloney is a small blond, collegiate-looking teacher. She is also very factual. The room showed definite signs of having been "used" by the 55 children who cut, paste and color five days a week. But, who has time to pick up a broken crayon where there are things to learn; things to see; things to touch. Things, things, everywhere things.

The behavioral research visual aids even interested me and it has been some time since I visualized anything on the Dick, Jane and Sally level. Most parents are probably happy to learn that Dick, Jane and Sally are still around in the pre-primer reader. However, they are no longer watching each other run and play; they are hopping and playing leapfrog. One more indication of the advanced alertness of today's youngsters.

All the kindergarten teachers I have interviewed are united in the conclusion that today's kids are smarter and quicker than those of ten or fifteen years ago. They also unanimously attribute the advancement to television.

Parents of kindergarten students in District 146 pay a $20 entrance fee which includes all materials and daily milk. Cookies are brought from home by the children. There are 12 kindergarten classes in the district; two at the Fulton School (Mrs. Maloney has a morning and an afternoon class) two at Memorial; and four each at Sandidge and Fierke Schools.

The students learn to count to 30, write numbers to ten, recite the alphabet, print and read basic words. They learn rhyming of words, left to right concepts and sounds. Mrs. Maloney's class has had many study periods based on changes of weather, materials, sound, plants, animals, neighborhoods, growth and environment. They have baked cupcakes to visually witness change. They have learned simple math addition of combinations adding up to five — but, no subtraction; this honor is reserved for first grade teachers.

Discipline problems are apparently always minimal in kindergarten classes.

Mrs. Maloney said that "her children" are generally very kind to each other.

"I let them make up their own rules — with a few suggestions, such as, 'what would happen if we all ran, or pushed?'"

Mrs. Maloney said that pupils at this age are exceptionally eager to learn.

"They get so excited sometimes," she said.

It is not difficult to understand their excitement when they are allowed to pursue a subject that is interesting them today instead of being told to "wait until we get to that tomorrow." Education has made great strides, especially in the last few years when newer concepts have actually taken root in the classrooms.

Enthusiasm is to education what amplifiers are to music; it may not sound any better — but, it goes a lot further.

Conservation for farm terrain

WILL-SOUTH COOK — If a dump truck went into a farmer's best corn field, and like a thief in the night hauled away 5 to 10 tons of topsoil from every acre, that farmer would be plenty mad. If this same soil were then dumped into the public streams and lakes, a lot of townspeople would be pretty mad, too.

This kind of costly damage is happening. It is not caused by dump trucks, but by rain and snowmelt running off unprotected cropland.

Fortunately it can and is being prevented by many Illinois farmers with the help of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. SCS State Conservationist, Howard W. Busch, reports his agency has helped 50,364 Illinois landowners develop a conservation plan for their land.

The plans are based on a study of the soils and terrain, the land's productive capability, and the landowner's desired use of the land.

A typical conservation plan for an Illinois farm might show some or all of the following practices: conservation tillage, grasses and legumes in a crop rotation, crops planted on the contour, terrace ridges across the slope of the land to slow water runoff, a dam and fishpond, tree planting or improved grasses on erosive hills, a tree windbreak, fence row hedges or turnstrips for wildlife, and grassed waterways to heal gullies.

Since these practices benefit the public by reducing pollution, another federal agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), often shares the farmer's cost in applying them to the land.

Tuttle requests post

MOKENA — A business manager or administrative assistant for Mokena has been suggested by Mayor Will Tuttle. Other villages have adopted such a plan, and have found that, in most cases it was helpful.

Tuttle suggested that such an addition could be made to the official staff on a part-time basis and provision made for it in considering the appropriations for the coming fiscal year. Such an appointment, the mayor said, would help take the load of all the development planning off the shoulders of himself and the village trustees, and follow each project from start to finish.

Robert Mason, of success research, which has been hired by the village to make recommendations on the William Weber property, said the firm could handle this phase of village work.

The board will discuss the matter further at a later date.

cleaner streams with less mud and sediment. Conservation practices can greatly reduce soil erosion and pollution from urban construction sites if developers and contractors follow these principles:

(1) select land where drainage patterns, topography, and soils are favorable for the intended use, (2) use those areas not suited for urban development for open space and recreation, (3) develop large tracts in small workable units on which construction can be completed rapidly so that large areas of soil are not left bare for long periods, (4) limit grading to a minimum and remove the fewest trees possible.

(5) control water runoff to storm sewers or other outlets so it will not erode the land, (6) protect erosive areas during construction with mulch or temporary grasses, (7) construct basins to detain runoff and crop sediment on the site during construction, (8) plan for safe disposal of the increased runoff from rooftops and parking lots, and (9) establish permanent vegetation as soon as possible.

Whether erosion loots a farmer's field like a thief in the night or gullies the front yard of your new home, the damage has only begun. The eroded soil will settle somewhere—probably in your city's reservoir or a streambed. A silted reservoir means water shortage for your community. Sediment in a streambed causes increased flooding.

It is much cheaper to make streams run clear by preventing soil erosion and pollution with good conservation measures.

Dredging streams and building new reservoirs are costly reminders that we've abused the environment. If we take care of our environment, it will take care of us.

Can curiosity be soothed?

By MARY F. STRAUB

The father of relativity, Albert Einstein, is credited with saying, "I never think of the future. It comes soon enough." Many of us are like him. We know that if we fall asleep at night and awaken in the morning the future has definitely arrived. But then, capricious creatures that we are, we are quite matter-of-fact about it, because it has become today.

Yet, over a period of countless years, curious — often plainly nosy — man has been tempted to try to glimpse his future. Said the Apostle, Paul, "We know in part, and we prophesy in part." (1 Cor X 111 9) Popular opinion alternates between believing prophesy to be in the realm of possibility or to be total nonsense.

Greek legend tells of the Delphic oracle, Pythia, a bewitched woman who relayed Apollo's divine messages to an eager, waiting audience. She sat on a tripod stool placed over a vaporous cleft in the hillside, and from this not too comfortable perch she told of future happenings.

This was a highly specialized form of prophesy, steeped in magic ritual ordered by the god himself, but the common man would not be out-done and he devised his own down-to-earth methods for learning of his destiny in advance of its occurrence.

Imagine deciding your marriage on a message pecked out by a hen or cock. Electromancy was basically a method of prediction depending on how a bird picked up corn kernels from a circle of letters. It would be consoling to know that if the marriage failed the fowl might become Sunday dinner, but there is no historical notation of this fringe benefit.

Another version of this divining technique involved persons walking around and around until they could no longer stand upright. As they fell at various points, they hopefully spelled out answers to urgent questions. Gyromancy is the title of this dizzying method.

Without a stone chimney in your house you could not practice the art of Spodomancy, which informs of omens through the reading of soot or cinders. Is it possible this is what Cinderella was doing when her step-sisters weren't looking?

Despite the crudeness of these methods, the underlying idea of peeking into the future remains fascinating to even the modern mind. Some ancient techniques have survived to this day. Astrology, palmistry, tea-reading, the use of the Tarot cards, handwriting analysis and numerology are avidly pursued by the inquisitive.

Probably for the first time in ages, the other side of the mind can be examined with apparent freedom. We no longer burn alive witches for having abnormal psychic abilities. The darkest corners of the occult are waiting to be explored.

Some phenomena are finding clinical support in parapsychological laboratories. Indications of illness are noted in the fingernails and in the various shadings of script. Characteristics of the skull shape, facial features and the hand are being considered anew in light of current personality research.

Perhaps the mind is capable of breaking the barriers between the Present and Future — time intervals labelled for convenience of communication. Perhaps not. If you wish to check your own precognitive potential, you can do so by making an accurately dated and detailed account of your vivid dreams.

Be aware of events as they happen and note if they coincide with your dreams, and notice the span of time between them. A matter of a couple of days between dream and event is considered to be a good indication of predicability, especially if this relationship occurs often.

You might also take a period of 5 minutes each day to test your "hunches." Be as much without distractions as you can; wait for an impression — a word, a phrase or a picture — to enter your consciousness. Jot it down and repeat 4 more times.

Don't re-read your 5 item lists prior to a new day's hunch session; your mind should be free of preconceptions. Once again, check events that seem to coincide.

Whichever exercise you choose to follow, persist! Your mind must have a chance to "open up" to the idea of projection, and you must learn to be more consciously aware of what it tells you. You may be pleasantly surprised to find that your ESP is improving. It takes only an open, searching mind to let "mysterious" things be revealed. Ironically, the mystery that is sought is that which is within that very mind.

It is predicted that we shall meet again next week in this same place.

Gemini engagements

SAGITTA SAYS If your engagement period extends through May 21 to June 20, the sign of Gemini, expect Mercurial influences.

Mercury is the ruling planet of this sign, and it may unearth intellectual judgements of, "Yes, I think I want this commitment" as against, "I think I want out of it." You may comment, surely this is common in all engagements.

But, Gemini, the 3rd sign of the spring equinox rules through the dispersion of energies, and a restlessness may characterize your engagement.

But, breathe easy! On a more positive note, there is also an impatience to integrate. In this context, to finally get down to the business of tying-the-knot.

CYNTHIA MARIE JOHNSTON

MOKENA—Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Johnston, 1826 37th St., Rock Island, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cynthia Marie to Donald William Teague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman F. Teague, 19802 S. Mokena St., Mokena.

The wedding will be at 2 p.m., Aug. 12, at St. John's Lutheran Church, Rock Island.

The bride to be is a graduate of Rock Island High School and Augustana College, now is a speech therapist at New Lenox Grade Schools. Don is a graduate of Shawnee Mission East High School, Prairie Village, Kan., received his degree at Central Methodist College, Fayette, Mo.

He now teaches fifth grade at Mokena Grade School, is president of the Mokena Library District and serves on the Mokena Youth Commission.

Galena opens houses

In 1852, Orrin Smith built a mansion in the riverport city of Galena, Illinois. Twenty-four years later and a stone's throw away, a log cabin was raised in a Menominee wood.

That the Mansion is older than the Log Cabin is just one of the contrasts which make the Galena Historical Society's Fifth Annual June Open House an event you won't want to miss.

These two homes and three more "Yesterday-Today" houses have been meticulously restored from near ruins by their present owners and are open to the public the second weekend in June (June 10-11).

The diversified house tour also includes The Terraces, The Inn and The Brewery.

The Terraces originally the simple brick home of an early goldseeker, now boasts extensive gardens, artist's studio, and a collection of antique autos. It perches on Quality Hill overlooking the once bustling riverfront and Horseshoe Mound.

The Inn once housed sailors and miners. Today, the board and batten house on Blackjack Road is imaginatively reconstructed and furnished with antiques of the American Empire period.

At the Brewery, catacombs where beer once aged have been transformed into a baronial dining hall and wine cellar. In the chamber where beer was bottled and loaded into horse-drawn wagons, antique sculpture joins centuries-old furniture from Spain, France and Galena, and with ironwork salvaged from demolition crews in Chicago and Indiana.

The Mansion is furnished in the manner of France's First and Second Empires — a quality generally much more elegant than that known by Galena's frontier merchant princes of a century ago — and is enhanced with parquet floors and fireplaces from the ancestral home of its present owner.

All five private homes were rescued with imagination, ambition and perseverance. The Log Cabin was discovered in the Menominee wood under layers of siding and moved by Walter Strandberg to his farm at the edge of Galena where he reconstructed it log by log. Strandberg conscientiously maintained historical accuracy in reconstruction and furnishing with one exception. He discovered a nine foot long stone under the ruins of a farm building and used it to make a massive hearth. The hearth replaces the pot-bellied wood stove which probably heated the cabin in '76.

Many people have turned barns into homes, but Jo Mead is probably the first to create a studio-home from an abandoned brewery. Miss Mead sought a foil for her collection of sculpture which includes such divergent objects as a ship's prow, cemetery markers and theater decorations.

Light, crystal and great spaces characterize The Mansion, a restoration by George Funke. As is usual in houses of this period, this elegance ends abruptly at the kitchen — the domain of the black cookstove and a lazy ceiling fan.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaRocco began creation of The Terraces with four brick walls that lacked a roof but possessed an unsurpassed view of old Galena. The meticulous restoration of the house was only the beginning. Gardens which terrace the hillside give the appearance of an English manor. Antique autos include a 1931 A 400 and a 1934 Buick Sedan.

Over in Muddy Hollow, Carol and Robert Diews began rescue of The Inn

by carting out a century's accumulation of debris. Imaginative reconstruction involves the addition of a captain's window and a fireplace mantel created from a salvaged wooden rainspout.

Animal Tales bite interest

Animals of all types and sizes are a constant source of interest to children from one to 100. Robert M. McClung has turned to the writing of factual books in story form. He has the qualifications and ability to write the material in very readable form. In each of his books he traces the habits of the animal through one year of its development. In this manner the reader learns of the animal's activities during all seasons of the year. The author also places the animal in its natural setting and discusses the other animals which live in the same territory as the subject animal of the book.

"Screamer, Last of the Eastern Panthers" describes in detail the first year of a panther's life; what he learns from his mother, who his enemies are and how his breed is quickly becoming extinct in the Eastern United States.

"Redbird, the Story of a Cardinal" reveals through the actions of the birds what kinds of personalities they have. The sauciness of the male cardinal is aptly described as he protects his young.

The docile nature of the female is also pointed out.

"Spotted Salamander" illustrates the development of the salamander as an amphibian. A bonus feature of this book is the instructions given at the end for properly keeping a salamander as a pet.

"Buztail, the Story of a Rattlesnake" relates one year in the life of the biggest timber rattlesnake. In addition, the author works into the text the necessary steps that must be taken when a person has been bitten by a rattlesnake.

"Blaze, the Story of a Striped Skunk" includes an incident in which a dog is sprayed with the scent of the skunk. Using story form, the author tells what can be done to rid the dog of the skunk scent eventually.

The text of these books is richly illustrated and the use of appropriate colors makes learning fun. The books described briefly above are in the Children's Room of the Orland Park Public Library. As pleasure reading for a hot summer day, they are just the ticket.

Sheriff to get own tank

By Michael Flynn

WILL COUNTY — Public Safety Committee of the Will County board, approved Tuesday the installation of separate gas tanks and pumps for the new sheriff's facility to be located on Laraway Road.

The office is scheduled for occupancy mid-July.

Cost is estimated at $10,000 for installation of tank and pumps. The Will County board has to approve the committee's recommendation.

LeRoy VanDyne, Joliet supervisor, voted against the installation. He said he could not see the need of the tanks and the continuation of the non-cooperation of the Superintendent of Highway's office with the Sheriff's office.

VanDyne said he felt the sheriff and the highway department should utilize the same tanks.

Sheriff Joseph Trizna preferred the separate tank facilities.

Draft regulation alterations

SOUTHWEST — In mid-March the United States Selective Service System issued major changes in draft Regulations.

These changes may be found in their entirety in the New Selective Service Regulations published in the Federal Register on March 10.

In summary, those of immediate interest to local men and high school students are:

1) A registrant is now entitled to bring up to three witnesses to his personal appearance before a quorum of his local board.

2) A personal appearance before a quorum of a state-level appeal board is now allowed upon written request of the registrant.

3) A personal appearance before a quorum of the Presidential appeal board is now allowed upon written request of the registrant, if the vote of the state-level appeal board is not unanimous.

4) A registrant now has 15 days from the date on his latest Notice of Classification (SSS Form 110) in which to request a local board personal appearance; or, if he wishes to by-pass the personal appearance, he has the same 15 days in which to request an appeal to the State appeal board.

5) A registrant can now request a personal appearance with his local board prior to the board's decision on his CO classification or hardship deferment request.

6) A registrant who now fails to report for a personal appearance before his local board, state-level appeal board, or the Presidential appeal board's given five days in which to submit acceptable reasons for his failure to appear.

7) The reasons for an adverse classification decision at a local or state-level appeal board will now be mailed to a registrant at the same time he is mailed a Notice of Classification (SSS Form 110). If the registrant desires the reasons for an adverse classification decision by the Presidential appeal board, he must write to this local board within 30 days of the date on his latest SSS Form 110.

8) A registrant receiving a postponement of induction which is authorized by the National Director or a state director, or which is issued in order for him to complete a school term or academic year will now receive consideration of a reclassification request until 30-40 days prior to his actual induction date.

9) Every male US citizen must now register within the period 30 days before to 30 days following his 18th birthday.

10) Registrants age 26 to 35 with extended liability, except for medical specialists, will now be placed in Class I-H, an administrative holding classification.

11) A registrant is now no longer required to obtain the permission of his local board in order to depart the country.

12) All classified registrants, with the exception of those in Class I-H, must now inform their local boards of changes in their status. Registrants in Class I-H, must inform their boards only of address changes.

Porcelain display

TINLEY PARK — Tulips and Lilies of the Valley decorated the tables for the May meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club. President Mrs. Delmar Kampe presided and hostesses for the dessert luncheon were Ethel Smith and May Panozzo. Mrs. Panozzo made the centerpiece.

Program chairman, Mrs. Panozzo, announced plans for a luncheon trip in honor of past-presidents. She will choose a restaurant and all will meet at Mrs. Joan Marshall's house at 10 a.m., June 15.

Mrs. Panozzo read an article on the origins of familiar plants as part of the Horticulture lesson. Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Evelyn Holup made arrangements and described them to the club.

A donation in memory of departed members was given to a local church.

Several members of the club attended a luncheon at the Fair Winds, Holiday Inn, Crete. The program presented was a collection from C.D. Peacock Jewellers of several priceless porcelain sculptures by famed artist, Edward Marshall Boehm. It was a Boehm sculpture of the Mute Swans that President Richard Nixon presented to China on his recent visit. The President has also presented Boehm sculptures to all the heads of State in each country he has visited on his latest trip to Russia.

Mrs. Boehm, wife of the late artist, gave a delightful hour talk on his life and work.

Pair die at NL crossing

NEW LENOX — Two Joliet residents were killed in a crossing crash in New Lenox Township about 1:30 Sunday afternoon. They were the only fatalities reported in Will County over the Memorial Day weekend.

Dead are Walter H. Schriber, 71, of 815 Dawes Ave. and his passenger, Madeline T. Wilson, 72, of 1108 Sterling Ave.

Both were killed instantly.

The Schriber car was traveling west on Regan Road and the train, a Norfolk and Western freight was going south at a rate of between 50-55 miles per hour, the train crew told deputies who investigated the accident. There is only a cross-arm sign to tell approaching travelers there is a rail crossing ahead. Deputy coroner Eugene Gerardi took charge of the bodies.

State grants to aid cleanup

SPRINGFIELD — Applications are now being processed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to provide state grant money for treatment of public waterworks waste discharges.

"This use of 1970 Anti-Pollution Bond Act proceeds represents a logical extension of funds for the cleanup of pollutants which are now discharged into Illinois waterways," said state EPA Director William L. Blaser.

"Both state and federal programs for water pollution abatement now provide assistance not only to sewage treatment facilities, but also to plants treating water supplies for human consumption," he said.

State grant funds are a more certain source of aid than federal assistance, however, since federal funds are still insufficient to cover sewage treatment plant applications already on file, Blaser noted.

Applications from waterworks facilities are evaluated and placed on the same priority schedule with sewage treatment projects, according to William H. Busch, manager of grants and tax certification section for the state EPA.

"In general, waterworks projects receive a lower priority ranking than sewage treatment projects because they are considered less critical in the overall cleanup program," Busch said.

"That has no effect on their likelihood of getting state grant money, because the bond act program is yielding enough to cover all applications," Busch said. "It does reduce severely the chance of getting federal dollars at an early date, however."

Financial aid for waterworks installation will be based on the same program outlines as that for sewage treatment facilities, Busch said, including requirements for meeting all federal specifications.

The grants are restricted to use for treating the wastewater discharges from waterworks plants, including filter backwash, chemical sludge and sediment that results from the purification and removal of unwanted materials from public water supplies.

"These materials can and often do constitute a significant source of pollutants when discharged untreated into natural waterways," Blaser said.

Application forms and details regarding the grant program for projects to treat waterworks waste discharges may be obtained from the Illinois EPA, 2200 Churchill rd., Springfield, Ill. 62706. Inquiries should be sent to Busch.

Although most of the grant processing will be administered by the grants and tax certification section at EPA, review of project plans and subsequent inspections and surveillance will also be conducted by EPA's division of public water supplies.

EDMUND
G. URBAN

TINLEY — James J. Bukowski, Tinley Park, was recently named the outstanding department manager of the year of Johnson and Johnson in Chicago.

Bukowski was presented the George F. Smith Award of the company in special ceremonies held at the corporate headquarters in New Brunswick, N.J., in recognition of his excellent record as department manager of the company's receiving and warehousing operations in Chicago.

He is one of only four department managers all over the nation honored with the award, which is named for a former president of Johnson and Johnson.

He and his wife and five children reside at 7348 W. Dorothy Lane in Tinley Park where he has served as a park commissioner and as an advisor to the Cub Scouts organization.

HAZEL CREST — Edmund G. Urban was elected president of the board of the South Suburban Hospital at its annual meeting.

A founding member of the hospital, he has been involved in the planning and completion of the new hospital building now in operation at 178th Street and Kedzie Avenue.

From his law office in Oak Forest, Urban has been active in many civic endeavors. He, his wife, Doris, and sons Edmund, Gregory and Jan make their home in Palos Park.

"Our new 122 bed hospital has been used to capacity almost from the day of opening, a reflection of the urgent needs of the people in our area," Urban said.

"We have now an expansion to 200 beds on the drawing boards and plan to open it to patients and doctors in 1973. Our long-range plans call for 450 hospital beds on the 60 acre land site, to meet the requirements of the exploding population in our immediate service area, from Midlothian to the north, Beecher to the south, Frankfort to the west, and the Indiana state line to the east."

At the Crossroads

Two submit plans for skylab

ORLAND PARK — Frank Bauer and Sharon R. Kyndberg, both sophomore students at Carl Sandburg High School, have submitted flight experiment proposals for the NASA Skylab missions to be flown next year.

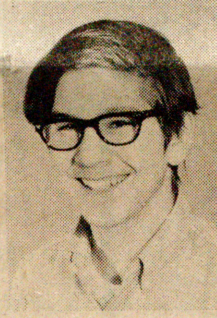

Sharon's experiment is entitled "Zero Gravity Seed Germination Experiment." Frank's experiment is entitled, "The Effect of the Earth's Magnetic Field on Animal Navigation." Frank and Sharon are two of the 3,409 secondary school students in the nation who have submitted flight experiment proposals.

Skylab, capitalizing on the experience and capability gained with Apollo, will be used as a manned laboratory to conduct scientific and technical studies and earth-oriented observations.

Chief issues paint warning

TINLEY PARK — "If your Spring Clean-Up includes paint up, keep fire hazards down," says Fire Chief Robert Bettenhausen.

"Water-base paints have taken a lot of the fire hazards out of painting," according to the Chief, "but be sure you know what you're using. For safety's sake, always read the label on the container, and be particularly careful with floor finishes, thinners, solvents and removers."

Following guidelines established by the National Fire Protection Association, Chief Bettenhausen points out that safest paint-up products are those labeled non-combustible or non-flammable. The next best choice has "Caution - Combustible" on the label.

"Avoid any products marked 'Warning - Flammable' and 'Danger-Extremely Flammable' if you can possibly find a satisfactory substitute cautions the fire chief.

With products carrying the flammable warning, use only in a place well ventilated and well removed from open flames or operating electric heaters and other sources of ignition. Observe the "No Smoking!" rule religiously.

Store all potentially dangerous products in tightly capped metal cans — never glass jars — and keep them in a cool place.

When using oil-base paints, linseed oil, turpentine and varnishes, be careful with oily rags. Dispose of them promptly and safely outside the house or, if you must store them place them in a tightly covered metal can, the chief advises.

Swimming or Sailing it seems that Tinley Park High School swimming coach George Gillberg can't get away from the water. Gillberg recently spent some leisure hours giving his son some fine points on sailing on a pond near 175th and Central.

Celts win Joliet title

NEW LENOX — Providence continues to dominate the Joliet Area baseball tournament. For the third year in a row the Celtics won the three year old tourney Monday with a 7-1 win over Lockport.

Butch Markelz, the ace of the Providence pitching staff ended the season with a 14-0 record by getting the win over Lockport in the title game. Markelz allowed three hits and fanned 13 enroute to the win.

The win enabled coach Tom Dedin's team to finish a 34-6 season record. Providence had won a shot at a third consecutive title Friday with a 2-0 win over Plainfield in semi-final action.

The Plainfield win must have been particularly pleasing to the Celtics because the Wildcats hold one of the few wins over Providence this season, 3-2.

Plainfield which took a 21-8 mark in the game was killed by three errors which accounted for both Providence runs' Lockport carried a 19-8 record into the title match.

The Plainfield win was also posted by the amazing Markelz, who gave up five hits and struck out 11. Providence managed only four hits but the errors plus clutch hitting made the difference.

Providence got the first run in the fourth when Markelz hit a bouncer toward third. The third baseman had trouble stabbing the ball, and his hurried throw to first was wild for a three base error. After Rich Susner walked Rich Baranak singled home a run.

Providence got the games final run in the seventh. Jay Druhan was safe on an error. Druhan stole second went to third on a ground out, and scored on an infield error.

Ignition stops Bettenhausen

INDIANAPOLIS — A faulty ignition system cost Gary Bettenhausen his bid for a win in the Indianapolis 500 Saturday. Bettenhausen led through most of the early part of the race, but was forced to the sidelines at the 182nd lap. Mark Donohue Bettenhausen's racing partner went on to win the race with an average speed of 163 mph.

Bettenhausen finished 15th in the race and collected $41,000 for his efforts.

THE BEST IN Sports

Two still unbeaten in softball action

TINLEY PARK — Only two teams remain undefeated in the Tinley Park Softball League after the second week of contests. The surprising Snappers of the Red Snapper Tavern and the Bombers, co-sponsored by Wydeveld and Brandau Construction Cos., sit atop the Federal Division with identical 4-0 records.

Several upsets produced a four-way tie for the lead in the Continental Division. The top spot is shared by the Nickelbag Revised, Brotherhood, Roadrunners, and Superchiefs with 3-1 marks. This week's heavy schedule of intradivisional play should reduce the room at the tops of both divisions.

The Snappers ran their win string to four by first downing the KC's Knights club 20-7 and then polishing off Teehan's Lounge's Tappers, 14-3. Two big offensive shows propelled the Bombers over the Tappers, 26-16, and the Landlovers, 41-17. Something has to give this week when the bombers meet both the Federal Division favorite Losers and the undefeated Snappers.

Upset was the name of the game for the Nickelbag Revised team. The Bremen Band & Trust entry was surprised by the Roadrunners of Ed and Joe's Pizza, 11-10, after having handed the strong Losers team Teehan Liquors their first loss, 9-4. The Losers then bounced back and scored big in a 27-5 verdict over the Latecomers sponsored by Kirsch Co. Bob's Texaco Bears broke into the win column by downing the Hustlers, 20-18.

Swim-a-thon is succesful

ORLAND PARK — The national Swim-a-Thon which was run at Carl Sandburg was a success according to swimming director Alan Gillberg. More than $4,000 was pledged and should be collected within the next week. Eighty youths swam in the affair with the majority finishing the 200 lengths in the two hour limit.

Gillberg said swimming the 200 lengths in two hours is just a little short of three miles. "It is really remarkable feat, I was pleased with the people who pledged and very impressed with the swimmers themselves," said Gillberg. "A lot more effort was shown over these swimmers capabilities and the Sandburg Guard did a great job," added Gillberg.

The money will go partly to the National Swim-a-Thon Fund, partly to a swimmer scholarship program for national outstanding swimmers and mostly to the purchasing of a new electrical timing device for the pool.

Miles, little but mighty

By Dave Lumley

ORLAND PARK — At 5-8 and 160 pounds one would think a boy would turn to bowling or full time team backer but such is not the case at Carl Sandburg High School where John Miles has been a four year standout in baseball and football.

Miles was just recently named to the southwest Suburban all-conference baseball team, an honor he also received last year.

John hit .378 and led the team in all hitting departments, and was picked as a unanimous choice and the all-conference team. As a junior he hit .324 second only to league leading hitter Mike McGee, his teammate. John led the sophomore team to the championship his sophomore year by hitting .466.

Asked why he plays ball Miles said, "I enjoy playing baseball because of competition, where I can match ability with the other guys and have a even chance. Size makes a difference but never give up. In general I consider my size a disadvantage in all sports, in baseball I don't have the long ball hitting ability or a real good throwing arm which you need to play college ball and the recruiters tend to ignore small players, they just want big, strong kids, as a small player you are always compensating." Miles said.

Miles started playing baseball when he was nine in the Palos Little League and has been playing ever since. He would like to catch on with a local team for additional experience and intends to enroll at Western Illinois University. John also said, "I like baseball and football equally but baseball is the only sport that I think I can play in college because of my size. If you try hard enough you can accomplish a lot more than you think." Coach Ron Mellen could only praise his star player, "John was our Most Valuable Player and did a heck of a job this year, he will be very hard to replace. John plays to win and should be tough at whatever college he goes to, he kept our team loose but at the same time probably cared more about the game than anyone."

John has been named to numerous all-star teams also. Miles also played football with equal zeal. As a senior Miles played wingback, a position usually reserved for much bigger players.

Miles grabbed 10 passes for 182 yards and rushed for 50 yards in 10 tries.

Miles was always a breakaway threat, once going 61 yards with a short pass for the game deciding score in 7-0 win.

His sophomore year he starred as the smallest tailback in the conference. Miles finest moment was in November of his sophomore year. Sandburg was deadlocked with Homewood for the championship and trailed 6-0 with three minutes left. Miles was sent in to return a punt and went 60 yards to score to win the game for Sandburg and the championship. With that run John gave hope to every little kid who wants to play sports but thinks he is too small. John Miles is a living example of the fact that a little guy can make it if he tries!

Kids discuss baseball kin

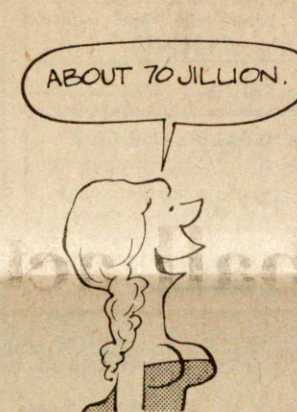

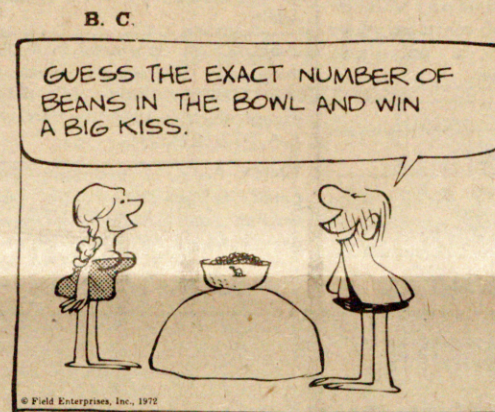

ORLAND PARK — Two juniors from Carl Sandburg High School in Orland Park have found being kin to Major League baseball players can get many reactions from fellow students and friends.

Peggy Farmer, has a brother Ed who is a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians of the American League. "My brother being a baseball player has had no effect on me personally, but what makes me mad is how some kids will be my friend just because of my brother being a baseball player," Peggy said.

Peggy also said, "They give me the impression that they are using me. Some kids will drop hints for free tickets to games." Peggy is glad, however, her brother is a ball player, "I'm glad he is a ball player because he's doing what he always wanted to do."

Anyway, whenever the Indians come to Chicago I can always see the game free," she added.

Bill Melton, Chicago White Sox third baseman, is the distant cousin of Pam Melton of Tinley Park. "My family has never met him, but we hope to in the near future," Pam said. "In two years my brother is going to try to be a batboy and will meet him then, a lot of people ask me if I am any relation and are very surprised to find out I am," Pam said.

Every year VW's race on the Baja. Every year they win.

Every year VW's race in the Mexican 1000. Over some of the roughest terrain in the world. The Baja Desert. Against all sorts of competition. And the VW's have finished first. Five times, in five consecutive years.

We're celebrating these victories with the Baja Champion SE. A limited production Super Beetle with special features.

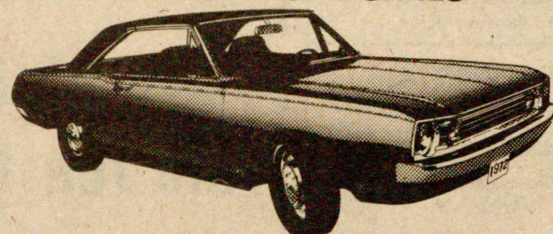

- Like silver metallic paint.
- Special sports wheels.
- A special plaque and certificate.
- An optional leatherette interior as standard equipment.
- And the same type of rugged construction and dependability that beat the Baja.

And for all that, it only costs a little more than a regular Super Beetle.

Like we said, The Baja Champion SE is a limited production car. We don't have many. So come in soon. Look over the Special Edition Beetle. And any other VW that catches your eye. They're all made as if they were going to the Baja.

We're celebrating with the Baja Champion SE. COLE VOLKSWAGEN

VILLAGE OF MOKENA ORDINANCE NO. 646 An Ordinance Providing For Dedication of School Sites or For Payment of The Fees in Lieu of School Sites by Land Developers, Builders or Subdividers.

WHEREAS, during the past ten years the Village of Mokena and Frankfort Township have both experienced a rapid increase in population due principally to the subdividing of vacant land within the jurisdiction of the Village; and

WHEREAS, planning studies have indicated that such population growth will accelerate during the next ten years resulting in the rapid disappearance of available land and the marked increase in land values; and

WHEREAS, the Village has found that healthful, productive community life depends in part on the availability of adequate school facilities; and

WHEREAS, it is hereby found and determined that the public interest, convenience, health, welfare and safety require the establishment of school sites within the Village in accordance with the following criteria which is consistent with the minimum site recommendations of the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Elementary School District No. 159, Will County, and High School District No. 210:

- 600-capacity elementary schools (K-5)
on eleven acres of land;
- 900-capacity junior high schools (6-8)
on nineteen acres of land;
- 2500-capacity high schools (9-12)
on fifty acres of land;

WHEREAS, demographic studies of the residential portions of a proposed subdivision or planned unit development can be readily and scientifically conducted to determine the number of elementary and secondary school age children and adults to be generated therefrom, and provide a method whereby the required dedications of land directly attributable to the activity of the subdivider-developer and the proposed subdivision or planned development may be calculated; and

WHEREAS, it has been found and determined that the locations of school sites to serve the immediate and future needs of children of each new subdivision or planned unit development is just as essential to proper land development as are streets, water, sewers and sidewalks, and to that end the Village has determined that the dedication (where the latter is deemed impractical) or a combination of both, shall be required of each subdivider, builder or developer of a planned unit development;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOKENA, WILL COUNTY, ILLINOIS, as follows:

SECTION 1:

That Ordinance No. 573 entitled "Municipal Code of the Village of Mokena", Chapter 9 (Subdivision Regulations), be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto the following Chapter 9-A entitled:

Dedication of School Sites or for Payments of Fees in Lieu Thereof.

As a condition of approval of a final plat of subdivision, or of a final plat of a planned unit development, each subdivider, builder or developer will be required to dedicate land for school sites, to serve the immediate and future needs of the residents of the development, or cash contribution in lieu of actual land dedication, or a combination of both at the option of the Village, in accordance with the following criteria and formula:

A. Criteria for Requiring School Site Dedication:

(1) Requirement and Population Ratio:
The ultimate number of students to be generated by a subdivision or planned unit development shall bear directly upon the amount of land required to be dedicated for school sites. The land dedication requirement shall be determined by obtaining the ratio of: (a) estimated children to be served in each such school classification over the (b) maximum recommended number of students to be served in each such school classification as stated herein, and then applying such ratio to the (c) said minimum recommended number of acres for a school site of each such school classification as stated herein. The product thereof shall be the acres of land deemed needed to have sufficient land for school sites to serve the estimated increased children in each such school classification.

(2) School Classifications and Size of School Site:

School Classifications and size of school sites within the Village shall be determined in accordance with the following criteria:

School Classification by Grades	Maximum Number of Students for each such School Classification	Minimum Number of Acres of Land for each School Site of Such Classification
Elementary Schools, Grades Kindergarten through 5th (K-5)	600 Students	11 acres
Junior High Schools, Grades 6th through 8th (6-8)	900 Students	19 acres
High Schools, Grades 9th through 12th (9-12)	2500 Students	50 acres

The comprehensive School plan and/or the standards adopted by the affected School District shall be used as a guideline in locating sites.

B. Criteria for Requiring a Contribution in Lieu of a School Site:

Where the development is small and the resulting site is too small to be practical or when the available land is inappropriate for a school site, the Village shall require the builder to pay a cash contribution in lieu of the land dedication required. The cash contributions in lieu of school sites shall at the time of issuance of building permits be paid to the appropriate school districts for use in the acquisition of land for a school site to serve the immediate or future needs of children from that subdivision or development or for the improvement to any existing school site which already serves such needs, or for the construction of any school buildings or additions thereto, or for the retirement of any bonds issued for school construction or improvements.

(1) Fair Market Value:

The cash contributions in lieu of land shall be based on the "fair market value" of the acres of land in the area improved as specified herein, that otherwise would have been dedicated as park and recreation and school sites. It has been determined that the present "fair market value" of such improved land in and surrounding the Village is $10,000.00 per acre and such figure shall be used in making any calculation herein unless the subdivider or developer of planned unit development files a written objection thereto. In the event of any such objection the subdivider or developer of planned unit development shall submit an appraisal showing the "fair market value" of such improved land in the area of his subdivision or planned unit development or other evidence thereof and final determination of said "fair market value" per acre of such improved land shall be made by the Village Board based upon such information submitted by the Subdivider or developer of planned unit development and from other sources which may be submitted to the Village Board by the School District or others.

(2) Criteria for Requiring Dedication and a Fee:

There will be situations in subdivisions or planned unit developments when a combination of land dedication and a contribution in lieu of land are both necessary. These occasions will arise when:

(a) Only a portion of the land to be developed is proposed as the location for a school site. That portion of the land within the subdivision or planned unit development falling within the school location shall be dedicated as a site as aforesaid, and a cash contribution in lieu thereof shall be required for any additional land that would have been required to be dedicated.

(b) A major part of the school site has already been acquired and only a small portion of land is needed from the development to complete the site. The remaining portions shall be required by dedication, and a cash contribution in lieu thereof shall be required.

C. Density Formula:

The following table of population density is generally indicative of current and short range projected trends in family size for new construction and shall be used in calculating the amount of required dedication of acres of land or the cash contributions in lieu thereof unless a written objection is filed thereto by the subdivider or developer of the planned unit development.

In the event a subdivider or developer of a planned unit development files a written objection to the Table of Estimated Student Population listed herein, he shall submit his own demographic study showing the estimated additional population to be generated from the subdivision or planned unit development and in that event final determination of the density formula to be used in such calculations shall be made by the Village Board of Trustees based upon such demographic information submitted by the subdivider or developer of the planned unit development and from other sources which may be submitted to the Village Board of Trustees by the School Districts or others. It is recognized that population density, age distribution and local conditions change over the years, and the specific formula for the dedication of land, or the payment of fees in lieu thereof, as stated herein, is subject to periodic review and amendment if necessary.

D. Reservation of Additional Land:

Where any other ordinance of the Village requires a larger amount of property for school sites in a particular subdivision or planned unit development than the subdivider or developer of a planned unit development is required to dedicate by virtue of the provisions of this ordinance, such other ordinance shall prevail and be complied with.

E. Combining with Adjoining Developments:

Where the subdivision or planned unit development is less than 40 acres, a school site which is to be dedicated should, where possible, be combined with dedications from adjoining subdivisions or planned unit developments in order to produce usable school sites without hardship on a particular subdivider or developer of a planned unit development.

F. Topography and Grading:

The slope, topography and geology of the dedicated site as well as its surroundings must be suitable for its intended purposes.

G. Improved Sites:

All sites shall be dedicated and improved in accordance with the applicable ordinances of the Village.

SECTION 2:

The dedications of land or cash contributions in lieu thereof required by this Ordinance shall also as a matter of policy of the Village be required as a condition to the annexation of any land to the Village and provisions therefor shall be incorporated in any annexation agreement governing such land.

SECTION 3:

This chapter is hereby incorporated as a part of the official Village Plan.

SECTION 4:

If any provisions of this Ordinance, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is declared invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, such partial invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this Ordinance, which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application thereof, and to this extent the provisions of this Ordinance are declared to be severable.

SECTION 5:

All ordinances or parts of ordinances of the Village heretofore adopted and which may be in conflict in whole or in part of any of the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed to the extent of any such conflict.

SECTION 6:

This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication as provided by law.

How to hide the fact that you're away on vacation.

You could ask your next-door neighbor to come in and switch on a lamp. But that's tough on him if you live in the country. And if you live in the city, you may not even know your neighbor. Besides, who'll turn it off?

Install an electric timer instead. Even better, install several. By now an average burglar is wise to the lamp that goes on at dusk and goes off at bedtime. Especially if the performance is confined to one room and lasts two weeks. It will take him much longer to figure out the living room lamp and the TV or radio going on at dusk and off at 10:40. And the bathroom light switching on from 10:30 until 11:00. And the bedroom reading lamp from 11 until 11:20. And if the kitchen overhead switches on at 2 a.m. for 15 minutes, he'll never figure it out.

Added advantage: this tricky timing uses about the same amount of electricity as one steadily burning lamp.

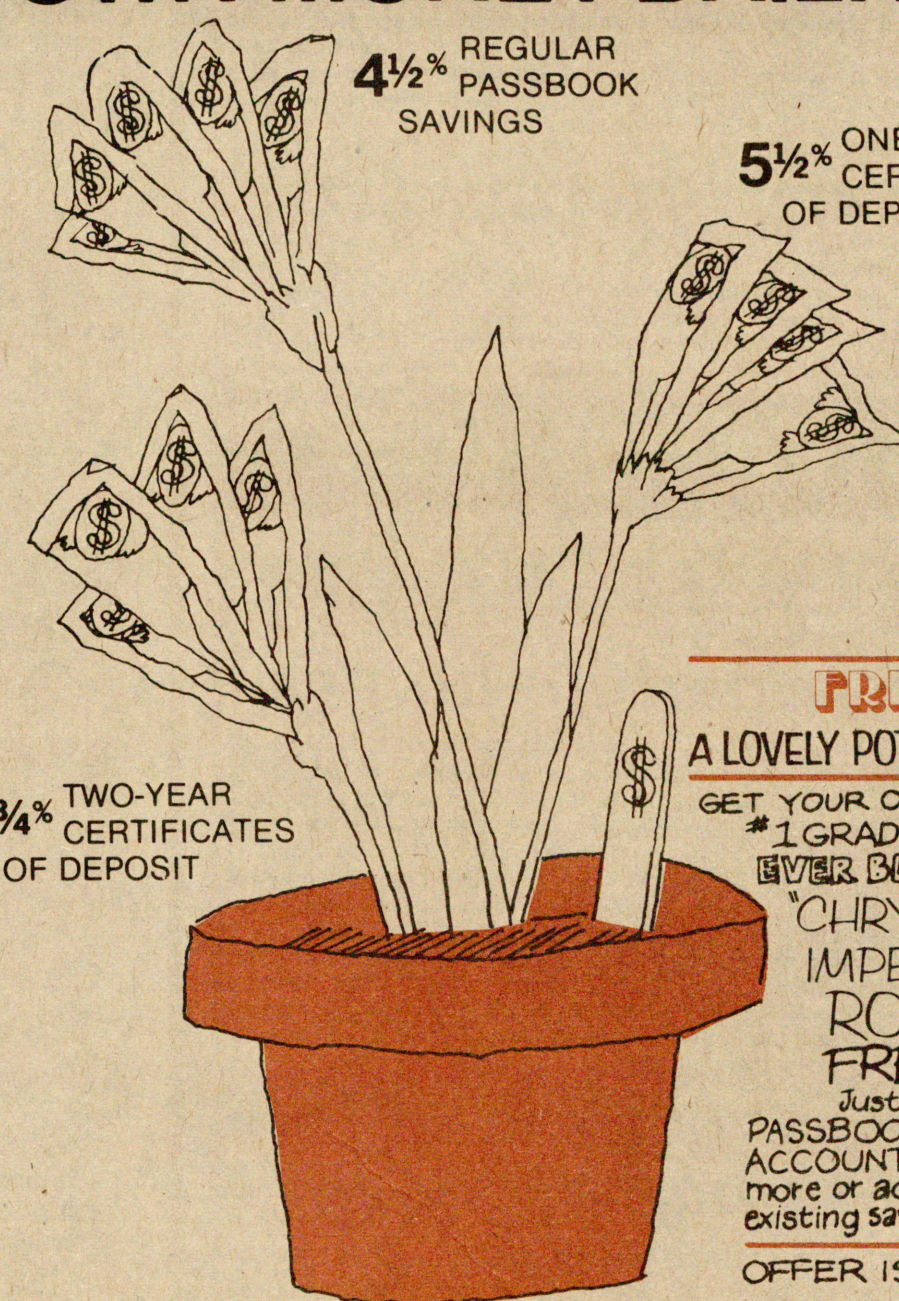

And for extra area protection anytime, an electric eye to light up your yard automatically from dusk till dawn, so you can see everyone who approaches your home.

Give your neighbor a break and just let him collect the mail and read your magazines.

Hall of fame honors for senior citizen

MOKENA — Mrs. Marie Lengrich, 10832 First St., one of the organizers and an active worker in the Mokena Senior citizens Club, has been named a member of the 1972 Senior Citizens Hall of Fame. She was nominated by the Mokena Club.

The honor was conferred at the annual meeting of the Will County Senior Citizens at the Service Center in Joliet. There were 21 who attained Hall of Fame status, all nominated by their local clubs. The certificate of recognition to Mrs. Lengrich was awarded by the Joliet Township Senior Citizens Commission in recognition of outstanding contributions and services in behalf of the Mokena Senior Citizens Organization.

She also received a Certificate of Appreciation for having faithfully served the city of Joliet for one year as a member of the Mokena Senior Citizens. This certificate was signed by the mayor and city council.

Mrs. Lengrich, who is 74, visits shut-ins, provides transportation to adults who need it and is quite active in the affairs of St. Mary Church. Mrs. Lengrich has been a resident of Mokena 21 years. She and her husband, the late Dr. George Lengrich, came here in 1951 from Chicago after he had served the Federal government as a veterinarian for 30 years. He engaged in private practice in the area until his death in 1959.

Library offering art

NEW LENOX — Among the collection borrowed from the Bur Oak Library System by the New Lenox Township Library are 20 "large type" books. These are easier for tired eyes.

Also at hand are "Seascape Painting Step by Step," "O Say Can You See," (America through great pictures); "The World of the Ballet and Dance;" "The New Pagans," by Hans Holzers and "Pop Art."

New adult fiction on the popular book shelf: "The Hoellenberg Inheritance," by Evelyn Anthony; "The Charlotte Armstrong Treasury (three in one); "Yellow-horse," by Dee Brown; "Firecrest," by Victor Canning; "The Terminal Man," by Michael Crickton; "Walk in the Paradise Garden," by Anne Maybury; "The Seventh Sinner," by Elizabeth Peters; "The Doctor's Second Love," by Elizabeth Seifert; "It Happened on Rush Street," by Walter Schwimmer; "Bomb-er," by Len Deighton.

It was announced by the library that it now has art prints for children's rooms. These may be borrowed for a period of six weeks.

Protest mobile homes

GREEN GARDEN — More than 400 — about 50 per cent of the total population — residents of Green Garden Township turned out last Wednesday night to protest location of a mobile home park near 80th Avenue and Dralle Road.

Arriving at the town hall where the Will County Zoning Board of appeals was to hold a hearing on the petition of Dr. Robert R. Walper Chicago, for rezoning 120 acres to permit the trailer park, the protesters learned that the petition had been withdrawn.

The petitioner's lawyer, Larson Gray, told the zoning board that his client was having a consultant firm prepare a presentation. The case will be brought up for another hearing later. The zoning board secretary, Attorney Douglas Spesia, said that a legal public notice will be published, as required by law, before the new hearing is conducted.

The attorney for the Peotone Unit School District, B.R. Tongren, said the district objects to the re-zoning. Another attorney, Donald Gimbel, of Geneva, filed objections for Louis Miller. According to Gimbel, his client has a direct interest in 80 of the 120 acre tract.

Board must try again

NEW LENOX — The New Lenox village board has a job to do all over again — hire an administrative assistant that will serve as a liaison man between the board and the public.

Roy Dowle was doing this job before he resigned to go to Florida. The board advertised for a man to replace Dowle and after screening a number of applicants announced that Donald Azukas, of Worth, had been hired.

At last Wednesday's meeting of the board Trustee Jim Warning announced that Azukas had informed the board that he had changed his mind and would not take the post.

Rather than starting from scratch again the board may reconsider some of the other applicants, it was indicated. There were several that were about on a par with the selectee.

Skate shed burns down

NEW LENOX — New Lenox Volunteer Fire Department had two calls last Wednesday night. The first was when a furnace motor caught on fire in the house trailer of James Carroll, Gougar Road, north of U.S. 30.

About an hour later firemen went to East Circle Drive. A skating shelter, built of rough side lumber to resemble a log cabin, on the banks of Hickory Creek, was destroyed by flames.

The cabin was on the William Healy property. There was an oil stove and some fuel in the cabin. Origin of the blaze was not determined. Assistant Chief George Ellis was in charge on both runs.

Wednesday afternoon the department extinguished a grass fire along the Rock Island and Norfolk & Western tracks.

For Mokena

Weber land topic of special meeting

MOKENA — Members of the Mokena Plan Commission and village board were scheduled to meet last night (Tuesday) with William Weber and Robert Mason, of Success Research, to discuss what should be done with the Weber property.

Success Research was hired by the village board to study the Weber property and make as recommendation as to its best uses. The Webers own approximately 90 acres of Schoolhouse Road, about 50 of which lie to the west.

The Webers are seeking zoning for this section and would like to build multiple housing units there. The acreage east of Schoolhouse Road is presently zoned for industrial purposes and the Webers are willing to let this stand for the time being. At the meeting of the village board last week Mason reported on the development. His recommendations were as follows:

- 1 — Should include some single family area as a buffer zone.
- 2 — That the maximum density for the area be 11 units per acre.
- 3 — The part to be given for park purposes should be included in the first 50 acres if it is to be used there.

4 — The service station area is not desirable.

5 — Reverse Road should go through in some manner and be a public dedicated street.

6 — There should be two entrances on 191st street.

7 — The fire lanes are not the best and should be eliminated.

8 — Negotiations with the schools should be clear cut before the village enters into an annexation agreement.

9 — The Weber home property should be annexed and provisions made that the Webers be allowed to use the land as a farm for a number of years. An overlay should be created for their present home property now that would follow through with this planned unit concept and this should be a part of the plan.

School land trial set June 15

NEW LENOX — Trial of the suit brought by the Lincoln-Way High School and the New Lenox Grade School boards to have the sale of the Caroline Bentley lands left to the schools set aside is scheduled to begin June 15 before Judge Emil DiLorenzo in the Circuit Court at Joliet.

The trial has been scheduled to begin June 7 but was put over a week by Judge DiLorenzo when he ruled on a motion by the defense objecting to the Lincoln-Way High School Board of Education and the school's superintendent, Joe Kruzich, acting as trustees for a scholarship fund to be set up with the proceeds of the two 80-acre tracts left to the high school by Miss Bentley.

Judge DiLorenzo did not appoint the board, as such, or the superintendent, as such, as trustees but he did name the members of the board of education and Joe Kruzich as individuals to serve as trustees of the scholarship fund when it is established. All will be bonded.

The New Lenox Grade School District was left the proceeds from the sale of 240 acres, with the provision that it could use the money for school construction.

BB breaks church windows

FRANKFORT — Someone with a B-B gun shot several holes in windows in the Sunday School building of St. Peter's United Church of Christ last week, according to the report to Frankfort police.

There also were holes in the stained glass windows in the belfry.

Ceward W. Batson, New Lenox, and Ralph Agate, Orland Park, are the executors under the will and they are the ones who sold the land.

The schools claim the sales were made at two low a figure.

There has been considerable discussion of the case and it is expected the trial will attract many visitors.
